Stand-Alone Licensing

1

A stand-alone license allows you to run an Autodesk® product on a single workstation.

Introduction

Stand-alone licensing allows you to use your Autodesk product in trial mode for a given number of days from the first time you launch the product. The number of days that a trial mode is active differs between Autodesk products. You can activate your license at any time before the trial period expires.

When you activate your product, you receive an activation code. If you activate online, your activation code is automatically retrieved from Autodesk and the product starts. Activations are also available through email, fax, phone, or the Autodesk website.

NOTE If you are installing and using an Autodesk product on both operating systems of a dual-boot operating system, you must obtain a separate activation code for each operating system.

---

The license file stays on your workstation when you uninstall your product. If you reinstall your Autodesk product on the same workstation, the license information is still valid. You do not have to reactivate the product.

Multi-Seat Stand-Alone License

A multi-seat stand-alone license allows you to install, register, and activate an Autodesk product on several workstations using a single serial number. Multi-seat licenses can be purchased through your Authorized Autodesk Reseller.

The Create Deployment feature in the provided installer simplifies deployment by creating a server image that you can access to install the software on your
